

Sunday 8th
8 or 9 o'clock

Dear Family,

It's a quiet Sunday evening here after a clear, cold, & sunny day. I have been in most of the day because for some reason or another I have a very stiff back. (I think I stepped into a draft as I got out of a hot shower.)

I went out yesterday afternoon to see Campus Capers. A college radio program which I think I have mentioned before. Last evening I went with some of the other fellows to see some movies on the war in China on my student book. These were accompanied by a lecturer, a Chinese lady, Miss Lei (pronounced Lee). She had a very interesting personality.

both the lecture + picture were very interesting.

We've just finished Farmers Week down here. We had agriculturists all over the place. 45,000 of them to be exact from all over Mich. They had all kinds of meetings, and many farm kids got a holiday from school and come here in buses. You can imagine how depressed they would be getting a day off from school. They whooped + hollered around campus + threw snowballs at anything that was anything. There were about five boys ~~boys~~ in a group walking across the field to the Demonstration Hall (military) at the same time that I was. One of them was a red head and one of the other kid said to him, "Hey Red! that's what you will look like in few years."

2.

Boy was he insulted he was going to tear the other guy limb from limb. I can't say as I wouldn't have felt the same way myself if I were he.

Well I've started work on my long term English paper. This is quite a job and requires about a month to do. It is only 1500 words long but it must be a scientific monograph, which means it must be absolutely accurate. all sources must be recognized etc. Next week is mid-terms boy does time fly.

Well I've got to write a couple paper letters so I say so long
B umbo.

Lawrence X Smith 17
Proctor

285 Mason Hall
East Lansing
Mich.

The Baw Family
Hamburg New York
R.F.D. # 3